Issue 0.02 of the Swedenborg Review

The second issue of the Swedenborg Review is coming in the New Year! Look out for an announcement of the launch at our Birthday Meeting in your inbox. The new issue contains just as exciting a variety of articles as the previous issue, from an essay about the Sibly brothers to an extract from an upcoming work by Iain Sinclair. Want a copy of the first issue? Become a Friend of Swedenborg House.

and bookshop

Swedenborg House will be closed from 21 December to 2 January. Come by today or tomorrow to pick up any last-minute holiday gifts, whether that's our new set of Swedenborg's Four Doctrines or a beautifully designed sketchbook.

update | Henry Corbin Discussion Group

The last meeting of the Henry Corbin discussion group with Max Phillips was held on Wednesday 4 December. We're sorry to see this long-running group go, but we'll announce a new discussion group with Max in the New Year!

workshop | Discover the secrets of Swedenborg House with Sally Kindberg

We were very glad to have the artist Sally Kindberg return to give another children's drawing workshop at Swedenborg House on 14 December! Every participant enjoyed making comic strips, drawing with quill pens and exploring Swedenborg House. Have a look at Sally's lovely blog post about the day, and make sure to sign up to our spring workshop when it's announced.

residency | Swedenborg Residency with Chloe Aridjis

We're all very excited to have the novelist Chloe Aridjis on board to take over the Swedenborg Residency 2019-2020! As her first act, she guest judged the Swedenborg Film Festival 2019 and gave three excellent readings from her novels, paired with visionary feature films. We have lots of exciting announcements coming up to do with Chloe's Residency, so stay tuned.

exhibition | Let Us Record The Atoms As They Fall

In October, Bridget Smith put on her final exhibition as part of the Swedenborg Residency, Let Us Record The Atoms As They Fall. This was a beautiful show, drawing inspiration from the Swedenborg Archive and ideas from both Swedenborg's scientific and visionary periods. The opening had over 150 visitors, brightening up a chilly October evening. Our thanks to Bridget, for all the exciting works created as part of her Residency!
